210	Domestic Overt Collection	In addition to a master index of approximately 150,000 names, division Headquarters presently maintains approximately 50,000 active files.	The number pertaining to the master index should have been approximately 500,000. The estimate of 50,000 active files is confirmed but it should be noted that some 8,000 additions have been made to these files since the report was published and it is estimated that the index has also increased by about 8,000 entries.
242-243	Central Files and Indices of the Operations Directorate.	The number of references has...been progressively reduced to its present level of 7,500,000 names (including an indeterminate number of duplicates). Of these an estimated 115,000 names are of persons who are either known or believed to be United States citizens. The Operations Directorate has a total of some 750,000 personality files. Of these the Agency estimates 57,000 files are of American citizens and an additional 15,000 are of persons who may be American citizens.	When the Commission report was prepared the index contained approximately 8.7 million records (including an indeterminate number of duplicates). We do not know why the Commission used the smaller number. The estimate of 115,000 names of known or presumed United States citizens was sound; the number has increased by about 1,000 in the past year. Of the 8.7 million index entries mentioned above some 768,000 refer to personality files of which we have approximately 536,000. (There can of course be multiple entry references to a single file as in the case of indexing a woman's maiden and married names. The Commission's reference to 750,000 "personality files" should have read "personality records" and the number 750,000 corresponds to the 768,000 records just mentioned. The estimate of 57,000 files on Americans is confirmed but this figure has increased by about 1,000 since the report was written. The estimate of 15,000 files on persons who may be Americans is confirmed. It should be noted that but for the moratorium on destruction of files imposed by the Senate many of these files would have been destroyed during the past year, by far offsetting the small increase reported here.

112	Mail Intercept	The project ...provided file data ...in a compartmented computerized machine record system containing almost 2,000,000 entries.	The basis for the estimate of 2,000,000 entries is not known, but the index (which has not been altered since the Commission made its report) is now estimated to have 1,400,000 entries. There is no way of knowing how many "repeats" on duplicate entries there are in the index, which is no longer maintained. (It should be noted that the index would be of no value whatever in meeting the requirements of FR 1032 should the bill become law.)
130	MICHAOS	...the Operation compiled some 13,000 different files, including files on 7,200 American citizens. The documents in these files and related materials included the names of more than 300,000 persons and organizations which were entered into a computerized index. Utilizing this information, personnel of the Group prepared 3,500 memoranda for internal use; 3,000 memoranda for dissemination to the FBI; and 37 memoranda for distribution to high officials.	The program had 10,094 files but some of these have two or more volumes; we believe the Commission figure was an estimate of the number of volumes in the MICHAOS file. The exact number of files on American citizens is 7,238. The computerized index would be more accurately described as having an estimated 200,000 names. The larger figure reflects, in the index of many duplicates, name variations, etc. The number of memoranda for internal use, 3,500, is accurate, but the number of memoranda for dissemination to the FBI is understated at 3,000. The actual figure was 4,500. There were in addition some 1,000 cable disseminations to the FBI. The number of memoranda to high officials, 37, is accurate.
